Description

Tagor is an Electronic manufacturing services company, which means we are involved in the manufacturing of electronic products or parts for other clients. We are specialized in PCB assembly but are also quite skillful in cable and wires harness, and we also do complete box build for our clients, as Niš is situated with lots of producers from other industries (plastics, metal processing...), which enables us to provide our clients with one-stop-shop solutions. Our services also include sketch to scale production (from the idea, through prototypes production, certification, and mass production). We especially skilled in providing testing solutions for your electronic products, and our clients include brands in the automotive industry, white goods, consumer electronics, medical, industrial...)
